Father Lee Hutchison

As I am writing, we are heading towards 2 years of dealing with the covid pandemic. As a congregation we have been fortunate to only have had a handful of cases with no one seriously ill from the virus. Cases of the virus are dropping again and hopefully we will avoid another surge of cases in the future.

Our outdoor services attendance dropped as low as the single digits, but last Sunday we had nearly 80 people attend our services. Everyone had been vaccinated and some have already received a booster shot. Financially we finished our first year of covid with a surplus; as we close out our 2nd year of covid we may have a deficit. The reason being we did not budget for a new roof on the church. We decided to take our surplus from last year to pay for much of the cost of the new shingles, thus we will likely show a deficit.

Pledge cards will soon be mailed out. Consider your pledge for 2022, and please return them as soon as possible.

I close by thanking each and everyone one of you for your patience with myself and each other. We have been tested as we never have been before. We have tried new ways of worship that have been effective and some not so much. We have been challenged by the diversity of ways as to how to best live with this virus. Through it all we have managed some semblance of charity towards one another. One of the blessings I have experienced as your rector is the common sense and pragmatism of our congregation, that along with our faith in God, our love and concern for one another will carry us through to the other side of this storm.

Fr. Lee

Wednesday Discussion

Rob Rowley, Director of Henrico County Emergency Management, was available to us on several Wednesday evenings in October with important information and to answer questions.

On the 13th, Mr. Rowley talk with us about emergency preparedness at your home. It was an excellent session with great suggestions including a great tip what to give my grown children for Christmas. We were glad we didn't miss it. Thank you, Rob!

Outreach Committee - by Jean Rollins

"The Outreach Committee would like to thank everyone who brought in their used jackets and coats to give to the Salvation Army. It was a great success, as we delivered them to Puritan cleaners, and they will then deliver them to the Salvation Army to give to children and adults who need them during the winter months.

We are now gearing towards Thanksgiving and have a box in the hallway to collect food for Dinners for Thanksgiving. The food will be given to the Lamb's Basket a week before Thanksgiving. Please give any type of non-perishable food, such as:

- canned fruit,
- canned vegetables,
- boxes of stuffing,
- macaroni and cheese,
- mashed potatoes,
- cake mixes and icing.

We will have the box out until Sunday, November 14th.
Thanks so much!"

"The ECW has been busy putting together soup jars to sell at the Crossridge Bazaar on Friday, November 5, 2021. It is a gated community but everybody is very welcome to come.

We will also be selling it after the 8:00 a.m. and 10:00 a.m. services, starting on Sunday, November 7th. Each jar is $7.00 each. All of the ingredients are in the jar, so it is simple to make.

We are also having a raffle for the beautiful Advent Calendar that Christa Burr has made. Every year she makes a different Advent Calendar made of a beautiful cloth. Be sure to stop by and see it in the hallway after the church services. Tickets are being sold for $5.00 each or 3 tickets for $10.00. The drawing will be held after the 10:00 a.m. church service on Sunday, November 28th.

Explanation of each Chrismon is found on each back.

FALL 2021 UTO INGATHERING

- by Kim Shook

The United Thank Offering theme this year is a gratitude challenge: "We encourage every Episcopalian to notice the good things that happen each day, give thanks to God for your blessings, and make an offering for those blessings."

We are planning for the final ingathering to be Sunday, November 14th, though you can, of course give any time.

Fall Camp at Shrine Mont

- by Christa Burr

In the last Cloak on page 8 and 9 you might have seen the info about the Diocesan Fall Camp. James and I had seen it, thought that would be nice but didn't register. Life happened. Then, last week, we were in the office and mentioned that we kind of regretted not to have registered. Our wonderful secretary Kathy told us that she had been several times, was going again, and how great it was. Well ... regrets on our part. Kathy was sure it might not be too late, gave me the right contacts, and it was not.

The rooms are simple but clean. The area in the mountains is lovely, especially when the leaves are turning. The event was awesome. It was just what James and I needed right now. We had not laughed this much in a long time ... for several days in a row. We sang with hands in the air (really) and had wonderful and interesting conversations. The musician and the keynote speaker were very spiritual and full of important things to say ... in a very human and humorous way. I can not find the words to tell you what these days meant to us. We believe that GOD wanted us to be there.

James and I hiked to the cross on top of the mountain along the Stations of the Cross. We were told in the beginning that everybody needed to do what they needed to do.

The shouting prayer at the Cathedral. Yes, we did it! Uplifting!

The four participants from St. Martin's, Richmond, VA

We were surprised to learn that this is the Cathedral of the Diocese of Virginia: Shrine Mont

“A Time and Place for Life's Discernment”

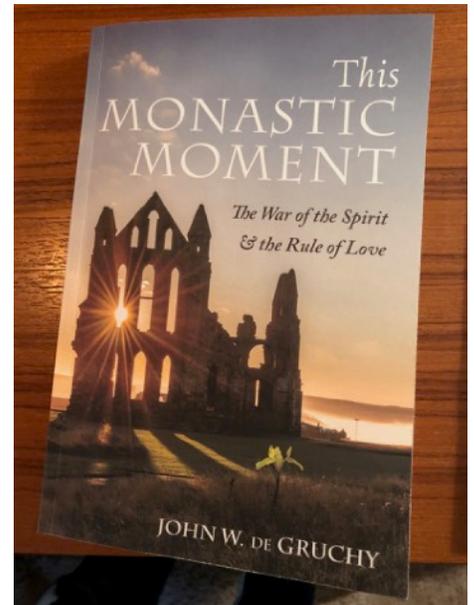

John W. de Gruchy is Emeritus Professor of Christian Studies at the University of Cape Town, South Africa, and he and his wife, Isobel (a talented writer in her own right), are very good friends of mine. I visited them in the spring of 2014, and we have remained in touch over the years. Isobel is a poet and artist (one of her paintings hangs in our front hallway) and John is the author and editor of many books. Most recently, he authored This Monastic Moment: The War of the Spirit & the Rule of Love (Cascade Books, 2021).

John and Isobel live in a place called Volmoud Community, a place of hospitality for conferences and retreats, with accommodations for sixty guests who have come to Volmoud—about an hour's drive from Cape Town—over the years since its founding. Today there's a Chapel of Thanksgiving where weekly Eucharistic services are held which John usually leads—giving a weekly meditation that he is kind enough to send out to a mailing list of friends. The Volmoud Community was actually founded in the 1980's during all the turmoil surrounding Apartheid. A fight against injustice and oppression that John was very much a part of. As John wrote in the book's Prologue: “Everything depended on a shared commitment to Christ and the gospel, the wisdom of experience, and a desire to achieve its founding vision” of hope for the future.

In this new book, John draws the distinction between chronos time and kairos time. In terms of Biblical theology, chronos time is just everyday, normal times as we move through our days; kairos time is the breakthrough of God's Spirit or the interruption of chronos time with Transcendence. When kairos hits, that breakthrough gets your attention. John says the following that I think is indeed thought provoking and likely applies to the times you and I are immersed in at the moment. He says “unlike chronos, marked by the daily rhythm of life or the regular sound of monastery bells calling us to prayer, kairos refers to moments in chronological time when all hell is breaking loose and we are called to change our ways before we are dragged into the abyss. Kairos is apocalyptic time, and it is here and now.” (P.7)

Last Friday I met with my own spiritual director—Fr. Peter Creed—and we talked about the times we are living through right now. And we also discussed the need for discernment, the need for taking time to retreat from the everyday and to take stock, to consider God's Spirit as God breaks through to our lives, calling us to listen to what the Spirit is saying to each of us right now. As John points out, we are living with Covid pandemic fallout, an environmental crisis, and injustice on a global scale. And so we need to take time and make space for discernment, for reflecting on our personal future and on where we are all going in the days and months ahead. And to do that, we need a place for retreat.

And once more, let's hear from John in his own words:
As we journey through life. . .we need places that provide space to catch our breath, unpack our backpacks, drop our burdens, and open up hearts. We need time to reflect, pray, and gather strength for the journey ahead. We need to regain hope. We need the rhythm of monastic chronos to cope with the kairos times in which we live. (P. 6)

Rev. Dr. Sandi continued ... from previous page

Over the years of my entire adult life I have always managed to find a place for retreat. St. Meinrad's Monastery in southern Indiana, St. Vincents College and Seminary outside of Pittsburgh, Holy Cross Abbey in Barryville, Virginia, Shalom House near Ashland, Virginia, a cabin outside of Crozet, Virginia—as well as other venues over the years. Most recently, my retreats have been located at Wintergreen resort, south of Charlottesville. I feel the need now for such a break. But for complicated reasons, I haven't taken myself off on retreat for a couple of years. But I'm working on it. In the meantime, as Pete and I discussed, instead of taking a “stay-cation” at home, I'm thinking about taking a “stay-retreat” on Donora Drive. Actually turning my cellphone and computer off (!!), and setting aside a whole week for no appointments or major social events.

I'll let you know in a future Cloak how that's going!

Sunday School and Children's Resources

- by Kathy Theado

Christmas Pageant

As mentioned in the October edition of The Cloak, Sunday School continues to run smoothly this program year with consistent attendance and engaging lessons. And of course, we are hurtling towards the holiday season which means that Christmas Pageant is right around the corner! I am sure there is a yearning among the congregation to experience the joyful sights and sounds of children as they present the Christmas story this year. We are of course in need of some extra hands to help coordinate the pageant. We are aiming for simplicity and accessibility so please join us to present the story of Jesus' birth.

A correction to the last months' article is that the Children's Worship Bags will be available on the Sundays that we do not have Sunday School. Look for them Thanksgiving weekend.

If you are intrigued by these offerings and feel called to this ministry, please contact Kathy Theado for more information.

Dear Friend of the CROP Hunger Walk,

CROP Hunger Walkers walk in solidarity with girls who walk miles every day to collect water. We walk in solidarity with mothers who travel long distances to find work to feed their families. We walk alongside students who trek miles each way to attend school. This fall, we also take steps alongside Afghan families who have made the treacherous journey to find safety in America. We walk, because they walk.

Please join us for the 51st Annual Richmond CROP Hunger Walk on Sunday, November 7, 2021.

We will have an in-person walk, starting and ending at the Shalom Farms Northside Farm site, 1313 Westwood Avenue, Richmond, VA 23227. Our kickoff rally will start at 1:30, with the walk at 2 PM. We are asking everyone who joins the walk to wear a mask, in the interests of safety.

There is also the option to walk virtually, any time during the week of Nov 7 – Nov 14. If you choose that option, we also invite you to share your walk with our community via Facebook or Instagram – post a selfie, a video, a map of your walk route, etc.

As COVID-19 continues to disrupt our lives and food insecurity continues to rise, the need i hope you will walk with us this year. You can walk as an individual, or as part of a team with group, or other community organization. You can register online at <https://events.crophungerwalk.org/2021/event/richmondva> and you can find instructions for how to do that here:

Daylight saving time and the effect on your health

What is daylight saving time?

Daylight Saving Time is the practice of setting the clocks one hour ahead of standard time to make use of more sunlight in the spring, summer, and fall evenings. DST in the US & Canada ends on Sunday, November 7, 2021. Typically clocks are set forward by one hour in the spring ("spring forward") and set back by one hour in autumn ("fall back") to return to standard time. As a result, there is one 23-hour day in late winter or early spring and one 25-hour day in the autumn.

Most find it more difficult adjusting to the time change in the spring when an hour of sleep is lost, than when the clocks go back one hour in the fall. Losing an hour of sleep may do more than just make you feel groggy, it could impact your mood, motor skills, appetite, and even your heart. Here are some of the ways the "spring forward" time change can affect your health, and what to do about it.

Mood and productivity

Daylight saving time transitions may disrupt your sleep cycles. When springing forward, the body needs to adjust to going to sleep earlier, which may leave people restless at night and cause sleepiness the next day. Sleep disturbances can cause mood disruptions and increased irritability. This can also affect memory, performance and concentration levels.

Workplace injuries

Sleep deprivation can affect motor skills. Research shows that it may lead to more workplace injuries, particularly around daylight saving time transitions.

Heart and circulatory problems

Changing the clocks ahead an hour can take a toll on your heart. A recent study found that daylight saving time transitions may be tied to an increased risk of stroke, particularly ischemic stroke. This type of stroke, caused by a clot blocking blood flow to the brain, was 8 percent higher during the first two days after a daylight saving time transition. Cancer patients and people over the age of 65 appeared to be at a higher risk of stroke immediately after the time change.

A 2014 study published in the journal Open Heart also found that setting clocks ahead one hour in the spring was also associated with higher short-term risk of heart attack.

Car crashes

Research was shown there is a spike in car crashes following daylight saving time changes. Even a small reduction of sleep can have serious consequences. Results show a 6% increase in crashes after resetting the clocks in the spring causing as many as 300 deaths.

Diet and appetite

Though not as serious as car crashes or heart trouble, daylight saving time transitions can temporarily wreak havoc on your diet. Any amount of sleep deprivation can affect the hormone levels in the body, which can lead to changes in appetite, an increase in cravings, and potential overeating. Sleep disturbances also increase insulin resistance and encourage the body to store more calories in fat.

Tips to help you adjust to daylight saving time

You can help avoid the health risks associated with daylight saving time transitions by taking steps to gradually adjust to the time change and getting enough sleep:

- ✓ Try making adjustments a few days before the time change, in the time you go to bed and when you wake up. This will help to prepare your body for the hour you will lose. You will need to include your family included in this effort.
- ✓ Stick to your sleep schedule.

- ✓ Get access to sunlight as soon as you wake up. Sunlight upon awakening can help reset your body's clock. Eating breakfast in front of a window or taking a walk in the morning may help
- ✓ Avoid or limit caffeine or other stimulants after lunch particularly around time change.
- ✓ Avoid taking naps during the day as this may decrease you ability to sleep at night.
- ✓ If you are sleep deprived, avoid driving. Getting a ride or using public transportation may be an option. Be sure to get a good night's sleep if you must drive. Remain vigilant.

Thank You for your Blessings

Hello Martinite's,

I have always known I was blessed to be part of the St. Martin's Family. On September 2nd I had unexpected brain surgery, since then I have had a chance to view life through different lenses. I now KNOW being a part of the St. Martin's family is truly a blessing from God! I was overwhelmed with the number of text, cards, phone calls, offers for meals, rides to the doctors and well wishes in general I received from my St. Martin's family. Thank You hardly seems adequate, please accept my THANKS FOR YOUR PRAYERS, LOVE AND SUPPORT!

GOD BLESS YOU EACH AND EVERY ONE

Poem Of Life

Life is but a stopping place,
A pause in what's to be,
A resting place along the road,
to sweet eternity.
We all have different journeys,
Different paths along the way,
We all were meant to learn some things,
but never meant to stay...
Our destination is a place,
Far greater than we know.
For some the journey's quicker,
For some the journey's slow.
And when the journey finally ends,
We'll claim a great reward,
And find an everlasting peace,
Together with the Lord.
