Faith and Prayer

- Mary Moss

Believe It's Already Done. And Let It Go!

"And this is the confidence that we have toward him, that if we ask anything according to his will, he hears us. And if we know that he hears us in whatever we ask, we know that we have the requests that we have asked of him" (1 John 5:14–15 NIV).

So often, we pray as a last resort! We've exhausted our own resources and finally relent, asking God to step in. Is it just me?

Jesus has told us that if we ask, believing our prayer has already been answered, then we don't need to keep revisiting the subject. Asked. Received. Isn't that what we read in John? Ask. Done. I wonder why we keep revisiting the topic simply because we don't get the answer we were expecting in the time we expect it.

Maybe we meant yesterday! Maybe we mean right now. Maybe we mean a specific way for the answer to arrive, or a certain version of what we expected. Our faith tells us He hears us. We know that He loves us too much to ignore our request. So, once we've asked. Believe it's handled. Our job is done. Then we need to let God take over.

A Grandmother's Special Message

- Dianne Lamb

As a child born in 1945, I grew up without a lot of the attention given to children today to help them succeed and cope with the world around them. However, God blessed me with a grandmother who was both loving and very wise. She realized that I was often unsure of what I could accomplish even though I put my total effort into every task I attempted. Algebra almost shattered my confidence, and I came home one day and announced that I was defeated. That is when she gave me a sheet of paper that showed wear and age. I read that paper enough times to memorize every word, and I have never forgotten the message. This is the wisdom and encouragement passed on to me:

Press On

Nothing in the world can take the place of persistence. Talent will not; nothing is more common than unsuccessful men (I added and women) with talent. Genius will not; unrewarded genius is almost a proverb. Education will not; the world is full of educated derelicts. Persistence and determination alone are omnipotent.

That's the message in a few words on an old sheet of paper that has been my guide. Sure, I have failed, but God has guided me through a life that has been enjoyable and exciting. As I encounter the challenges of growing older, I know the attitude of persistence and "keep trying" will be my mantra.

November is Stomach Cancer Awareness Month

November is the ideal month to focus on and raise awareness about gastric cancer. There is usually a great amount of food eaten between Thanksgiving and the Christmas holidays. However, raising awareness of cancer is important all year long. The holidays can also be challenging for people dealing with stomach cancer or even for those without a stomach.

Stomach cancers are the 5th most common cancer type, and the 4th leading cause of cancer death in the world. There are approximately 31,510 new cases diagnosed each year in the US, with about 10,740 Americans dying from stomach cancer. Since 2010, the US Surgeon General has committed to making Thanksgiving Day National Family History Day. It stresses the importance of knowing your family history, as heredity is one of the risk factors for stomach cancer.

One of the goals of Stomach Cancer Awareness Month is to raise awareness and support efforts to educate people about stomach cancer, including risk factors, prevention, and early detection. In recent years, some types of stomach cancer have declined, while other, more deadly, and more difficult to detect early types have increased dramatically. Ongoing research will result in better detection, treatment, improved survival rates, and cure.

Signs and symptoms for stomach cancer include:

- Indigestion, heartburn
- Difficulty swallowing
- Abdominal pain or vague discomfort in the abdomen, above the navel
- Nausea, vomiting, and bloating after meals
- Vomiting blood or blood in your stool
- Diarrhea or constipation
- Loss of appetite
- Unexplained weight loss
- Weakness and fatigue
- Feeling full after eating just a small amount of food
- Symptoms can mimic other gastrointestinal disorders such as GERD, Peptic ulcer, or gastritis

If the above symptoms are persistent, please see your healthcare provider. It is important to have the cause of your symptoms evaluated and treated, as that may determine a more positive outcome.

Risk Factors for Stomach Cancers

Some cannot be controlled, but others can be reduced by making healthier choices.

- Smoking
- Obesity
- Eating smoked, salted, or pickled foods

- Not knowing your family history
- Not treating H.Pylori (certain stomach ulcers)

Other Factors are:

- Age greater than 55
- Male gender
- Type A blood
- Family history (hereditary)
- Race – more common in Asians, Pacific Islanders, Hispanics, and African Americans

Early detection is the key to surviving stomach cancer.

Some cancers may be hereditary, where genetic testing and counseling can screen for these cancers. These include families with multiple cases of breast cancer who are BRCA1 and BRCA2 negative but include a case of lobular breast cancer.

Lifestyle changes can potentially reduce the risk of non-genetic stomach cancer. Know your risks. Know your family history. Be proactive. Talk with your doctor about your risks for hereditary cancers.

Diagnostic testing

EGD - usually referred to as an upper endoscopy - is a minimally invasive, outpatient procedure which allows your Gastroenterologist to see inside the stomach. A thin, lighted tube called an endoscope is placed into your mouth, passed through your throat, down into your esophagus and stomach, as well as the first part of your small intestine. Your gastroenterologist can check for abnormalities such as tumors, ulcers, obstructions, and inflammation. Biopsies of abnormal tissue can be obtained through the endoscope. The tissue is sent to a laboratory for analysis.

EUS – Endoscopic ultrasound (EUS) is a technology which uses sound waves to identify tumors and nearby lymph nodes to which the cancer may have spread. EUS allows your gastroenterologist to determine if cancer has spread through multiple layers of your stomach, helping your doctors to stage the disease and tailor your treatment plan.

CT – Computed tomography (CT) scans show detailed images of your abdomen. These tests help to locate the cancer in your stomach and determine whether it has spread to other abdominal organs. CT scans may be repeated throughout your treatment to assess progress. This test can be taken with or without contrast dye.

MRI – Magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) is another X-ray imaging used for detailing stomach cancer, allowing better detail of soft tissue than the CT scan.

PET/CT – This tool merges two diagnostic imaging technologies: positron emission tomography (PET) and CT. You receive both scans in a single imaging session.

Abdominal ultrasound – If there is fluid in your abdomen, your doctor may use this diagnostic tool. Ultrasound produces images of organs from high-energy sound waves and echoes. It may be used to check for tumors in the liver, gallbladder, pancreas, spleen, and kidneys.

Upper gastrointestinal series – This test requires drinking a chalky solution containing barium. The solution travels down your digestive tract, coating your esophagus, stomach, and small intestine. X-rays are then taken, producing images that show abnormal areas. Your doctors may then follow up with additional testing.

Lab tests, including biopsies and blood tests, help your doctors determine the extent of stomach cancer and follow the progress of your cancer treatment.

CBC – (Complete blood count) determines the numbers of the different types of cells in the blood. A CBC test can be particularly helpful in determining whether you have too few red blood cells, which cause anemia.

Tumor marker tests – These blood tests may be used in addition to other tests if you have already been diagnosed with stomach cancer and are being treated for the disease. Tests such as carcinoembryonic antigen (CEA) and CA-19 help doctors monitor the effectiveness of treatment. A rise in tumor marker levels may signal progression of the disease or a recurrence.

Liver function tests – These blood tests may be done to assess the function of your liver, an organ to which stomach cancer can spread.

Treatments for Stomach Cancer may include the following:

- Stomach Cancer Surgery
- Subtotal Gastrectomy
- Total Gastrectomy
- Chemotherapy
- Radiofrequency Ablation

- Liver Resection
- Stomach Cancer Targeted Therapy
- Stomach Cancer Radiation Therapy ·IMRT

In addition, there are Supportive Therapies for Stomach Cancer, which include:

- Nutrition Therapy
- Pain Management
- Mind-Body Medicine
- Oncology Rehabilitation
- Spiritual Support
- Chiropractic Care
- Survivorship Support

Your doctor may provide you with additional information or support agencies.

ECW Update

- Christa Burr

If you are not attending the Women's Group of St Martin's regularly, you might wish you did. There was a lot of fun to be had this October.

Actually, it was Saturday, September 26, when Martha S., Christa B. and Mary A. represented our congregation at the Third Annual ECW Gifts and Scholarships Tea at The Church of the Epiphany in Richmond. Everybody enjoyed it very much, and many of the ladies even went as far as wearing "fascinators". Yes, even Christa.

Saturday, October 10, we met in the church library room to discuss how to proceed without a President. Christa Burr volunteered to try to be an Interim President. The five attendees unanimously decided that meetings should be more often arranged as a breakfast in a restaurant - a Women's Group more like the St. Martin Men's Breakfast Group - to foster friendships. Today's women, especially our young ones, are so busy every day that a time-out without jobs might be what is needed. Laughter and fun!

The Fall Meeting of the Virginia Diocese ECW took place on Saturday, October 17 at Grace + Holy Trinity in Richmond. Betty H., Barbara C., and Jean R. represented St. Martin's. I was told that the speaker, Lisa Kimball, Ph.D., recently retired from the faculty at the Virginia Theological Seminary, gave an uplifting and meaningful presentation on the topic of "living our baptismal covenant."

The Fall Meeting was streamed, and we would like to invite all ladies of St. Martin's to watch (just Dr. Kimball's presentation) at the next meeting on Saturday, November 14 at the church. The gathering will start at 9 am. We will not call it a breakfast, but snacks will be served. And there will be other fun things.

The above photo was taken from YouTube. I think I have picked out Betty, Barbara and Jean. I wonder whether I am right.

We hope you will not miss joining us Saturday, November 14 at 9 am!

Operation Christmas Child

- Nancye Greenwood

It's Time for Operation Christmas Child!

Once again, St. Martin's is participating in this charity. This project is all about Jesus and is at work in over 100 countries around the world. This ministry has distributed more than 244 million shoebox gifts since 1993 and disciplined more than 52 million children.

Please visit our display table in the Parish Hall to learn more, pick up a shoebox, and help make a child happy this year!

Please note that packed shoeboxes are due back at St. Martin's no later than SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 15.

Of your, charity, please pray for the repose of the soul of

W. Ross Southward III

who died Monday October 12.

Ross loved St. Martin's and contributed greatly to the music and worship. The beautiful hanging lamp at the Shrine of Our Lady was designed and crafted by him.

Rest eternal grant him, O Lord
And may Light Perpetual shine upon him.
May his soul and the souls of all the faithful departed
Rest in Peace+

Condolences!

Sharing God's Love, Following Christ and Serving others

November has been designated the month of the Holy Souls by the Church since at least the 12th century. It begins on November 1 with the great feast of All Saints. On this day we remember the thousands of faithful through all the centuries that have proclaimed their faith in the Risen Lord. It began as a commemoration of the holy martyrs in the Roman Catacombs, but by the 6th century it included other holy men and women who were not slain for their faith but were honored for their good works. In 609 A.D., Pope Boniface IV consecrated the Roman Pantheon to the Virgin Mother of God and All the Saints. It still functions as a church and enshrines the tombs of the kings of modern Italy, but also the tomb of the most beloved of the Renaissance painters, Raphael.

On the day itself, or by common practice on the Sunday in the Octave, we remember All the Saints and ask for their intercessions for us. Anglicans are not bound by any ruling to follow the complex rules of the Roman Church in determining who is a 'saint'. The list of optional observances in our current Prayer Book attests to that, but we do honor them. You may have seen recently that the Roman Church has declared "Blessed" Archbishop Fulton Sheen, who many will remember from his hit TV show. Now, we await proof of two miracles before he can be formally proclaimed a saint.

All Souls Day on November 2 is quite a different matter. It is not a "feast." It is a commemoration. Vestments are black; flowers at a bare minimum, if any, and on this day we mourn our departed loved ones as the church best knows how with a Requiem Mass. We should recover our tradition of a service on All Souls Day and perhaps also the tradition of including in Sunday Prayers those whose deaths occurred near or on that date. A very great lady reminded us all after Sept.11, 2001 that "Grief is the price we pay for Love."

We, in the midst of the rejoicing for all the saints, now include on the same day prayers for the dearly departed. Sadly, this solemn commemoration is overshadowed by the belief, via Hallmark cards, that at our death we 'become angels'... nothing could be further from the truth. As "angelic" as some of our family and friends may be, they are fully human and redeemed as such by His Cross, Passion and Resurrection, forevermore. We will be ourselves in the Life of the World to come. We will see, know, and hold those we have loved in this life, once again and forever- though I trust a merciful God will 'revise' our frail human bodies a bit! Angels are an entirely separate form of creation. Our Guardian Angels will be at our side when we cross over - not to welcome us as a new recruit but as God's own child that he has redeemed.

Anglicans also generally add a Remembrance Sunday at the end of All Saints-tide. Usually this Sunday honors the sacrifice of the men and women of our armed forces who gave their all for us. Here, this is sometimes covered by Saint Martin of Tours on Nov.11 – our Patron Saint. As a soldier before he became a bishop, this is entirely appropriate in our observance. In the USA, we observe Thanksgiving Day as a Holy Day grateful for all God has given this country. Generally, this is followed by the Feast of Christ the King, which is incredibly important in that it is all that we have been led to since Creation itself. The Church Year brings us to the Glorious and unending reign of Christ.

Nov. 30 is the Feast of Saint Andrew the Apostle, who first followed Jesus and brought his brother Simon Peter and their friends James and John to the Master as well. He is the patron saint of Scotland and of Greece. As the American Episcopal Church derives her bishops from the Scottish Episcopalians, in the upper left quadrant of our flag on the blue field is the X-shaped Cross of Saint Andrew made by smaller crosses.

And then, of course, we are in the Season of Advent. In some ways, this is the most important of all the seasons of the church year because we are preparing and awaiting the return of Him who is King of All. Similar to Lent, we prepare our hearts and minds - not for a baby, but for the Word made flesh.

Lamb's Basket Update . . .

On September 29 we delivered 60 pounds of food to the Lamb's Basket!

Thank you all for your efforts. Every item helps, and we are making a difference.

Compline Leaders Needed

St. Martin's is in need of people to lead Compline service one weeknight a week. Compline is the final service of the day in the Episcopal church. It's a night prayer that prepares worshippers for rest and reflection. Our service occurs at 8p each night and only lasts for approximately 10 minutes.

If you are interested in leading this short, online service, talk with Father Lee or contact the office to learn more about how to get involved. It does not involve much time, but it's a very important service.

We give thanks for the safe delivery of

Chip Barry Cole

born in late August

Congratulations to the happy parents, Grace & Jonathan Cole! Chip has a strong lineage at St. Martin's, as his grandmother is Jennifer Cooper, and his great-grandfather is Joe Lamb. Therefore, he is also a part of the Cooper, Lamb, Howdysshell, and Wood families.

St. Martin's Project

Through St. Martin's Project, we are able to ensure bag lunches are provided to several area shelter residents every Saturday. We partner with three other Episcopal churches in the Richmond area, and we serve a women & children's shelter and a few transitional shelters for men.

St. Martin's provides bag lunches on the third Saturday of each month. Often, attendees of the Ethiopian service will help when that service is over. Here is a photo of the team preparing the October 17th lunches, with help from several of the Ethiopian attendees, including a few very polite and helpful children.

The St. Martin's Wine Club - Krestin Gibson, Nancye Greenwood, and Jean Rollins

November Wine Club

Our Wine Club meets the first Saturday of each month. As November 7 is also the day of our St. Martin's Day Anniversary Celebration, the club would like to share our wines with our church family. To that end, our club members will each be bringing a bottle of a special Virginia wine to share at the Saturday night dinner celebration. We invite you all to come! (Don't forget to sign up for the dinner on the Bulletin Board)!

Some photos from the October outing at James River Cellars Winery . . .

Outreach Committee

- Martha Sneary

Outreach will wrap up coat donations by mid-November so that we can focus on the Angel Tree project for Christmas. We will need volunteers to help make calls and deliveries for that. We will be gifting to 35 children this year. It is an especially heartwarming endeavor to make happen for the children of incarcerated parents. The gifts are picked up or delivered by the Saturday before Christmas. Therefore, please bring the gifts you are giving to the church no later than Wednesday, December 16.

St. Martin's Choir YOU are Wanted & Needed

Top 5 Excellent Reasons to JOIN the Choir:

1. Best seats in the house, and they are always reserved!
2. Cool Robes- you no longer have to worry about what to wear to church!
3. Your very OWN hymnal!
4. Fun and Fellowship. You'll have a whole new church family, and you might learn or refresh your abilities to read and enjoy music!
5. The quiet satisfaction of serving the Risen Christ in a most meaningful way!!

Minimal requirements:

- One hour rehearsals on Thursday evenings at 7pm from September through June
- Warm-ups for the sung Liturgy on Sundays at 9:10am
- The sung Liturgy on Sundays at 10am (but, you'll be at church anyway 😊).

Speak to a chorister or the Choir Master, or just come on Thursday night.

We promise a very warm welcome!!

"He who sings, prays twice." - Saint Augustine of Hippo

Tuckahoe Learning Grove

- Nancy Greenwood

St Martin's has been home to Tuckahoe Learning Grove for almost two years now. Some folks at St Martin's are getting to know the children as well. The ladies who play bridge on Thursdays often say hello, and Carolyn Mowery and Nancy Greenwood help with their music.

Below is a message from their teacher, Courtney.

Tuckahoe Learning Grove (TLG) is a small, mixed-age learning community serving elementary-aged homeschool students right here at Saint

Martins! Founded in 2025, TLG offers a refreshing approach to education that blends strong academics with hands-on exploration, creativity, outdoor learning, and plenty of play.

Our students spend three mornings each week learning, discovering, building friendships, and growing together. With small class sizes and individualized instruction, we strive to create an environment where every child feels known, valued, and excited to learn.

We're grateful to call the church home and to be part of such a welcoming community. We look forward to continuing to grow our little grove and sharing the joy of learning with those around us!

Blessing Box

Stock the Little Free Pantry!

When you have to shop for your food anyway, why not also pick up a few non-perishable items for the "Little Free Pantry?"

No glass containers please.
Also, nothing which could spoil in the summer heat like mayonnaise, dressings, etc.

We are happy to report that the contents of the box is very well used. It is often empty.

Help to keep it filled!

YOUR OLD EYE GLASSES & HEARING AIDS!

Please remember that those glasses you don't use any longer could mean a lot to somebody who can't see or read otherwise.

Same with hearing aids that are no longer needed. They can really help people who cannot otherwise get any.

The ECW will take care of them.
